MINING NOTES.

is Being Done in the Great Kentucky Mineral Fields.

The Eclipse Mining company is continuing its mining and pumping operations and preparing to actively expand its holdings in the Kentucky Fluor Spar District. The recent sale of its company on the McMinnville property is proving a great stimulus to further development. This is proving to be a very promising body of zinc sulphides, and the developments are being watched with interest by all concerned.

Renewed interest has been shown in the Eagle Fluor Spar company's property during the past season, and a new process zinc separating plant has been built and the machinery now installed. Preparations have been made for an extensive campaign on Cullen property near Salem, whose shaft has been put down some fluor spar vein and cross veins are being driven in two other veins recently discovered on the property. With such prospects ahead the campaign looks very favorable for the development of an excellent producing property.

The interest being shown in this field is growing and inquiries are being made concerning the possibility of this field as a zinc producer. A product of this field will find a ready sale if the separation of the zinc and fluor spar prove effective. However the zinc smelters will fight for any zinc concentrates having a high fluor spar content as surely. The problem of separation heretofore vital to the district and must be solved. The Lead and Zinc order.

The Union Central company is just erecting a concentrating plant at Prider. It is expected that the prospect work done last summer will furnish sufficient dirt to keep the plant in operation.

A report has just been received of a strike of zinc carbonate, lead and fluor spar has been made on the Coley and Campbell land southeast of Princeton. The strike was made by the Louisville Marion Mining Company.

The West Kentucky Coal company equipped their great Tradewater boats with new automatic self-dumping chutes and are now prepared to load coal with greater rapidity than ever before. Star Field.

The New Railroad.

The engineers of the Harrisburg & Erie Railroad completed their part of the line from Galatia to Marion last Saturday. They report they found almost an air line, 100 feet above overflow and over 100 feet which gives them easy grades, crosses the Middle Fork at least 8-10 times, and the Kins hill, Bankston, just west of city at the outer edge of Paris's subdivision of the section 16, crossing the Big Creek, Morrisville.

Camps started South from last point Monday morning, and notwithstanding the severe cold weather have gone through the mountains in the southwestern part of the state. They found the Saline river above low and a favorable grade through Harrisburg Chronicle.

The New Century Hotel.

A deed was filed Friday transferring the New Century Hotel at Dawson to J. V. Hayden, the consideration being $28,750. The management of the hotel made an assignment some time ago, and Mr. Hayden became the owner, but the deed was not filed until Friday.

The company owning the big hotel property have met with many ups and downs, and about a year ago an assignment was made and Mr. Hayden subsequently became owner of the property.

Large improvements in the hotel are contemplated, it is said by Mr. Hayden, who will spare no expense in making by far the finest in this section of the state. It could not be learned who will manage the hotel during the coming season. —Madisonville Hustler.

Opportunity Knocked at the Door.

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 17.—In spite of all the efforts of the Toledo board of education to hold her to her contract for two years, Miss Mary E. Reed was married today to Dr. H. H. Cleveland, of Orange, Mass. Miss Reed tendered her resignation which the school board declined to accept. But she was not to be deterred from her purpose, and without further formality quit her position in order to become a bride.

Welcome Back.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Coley Moore will be glad to learn that they have returned from Texas and will make their home here. Mr. Moore is one of the most popular of the many gentlemen who travel out of Hopkinsville, and will again go on the road for a large Evansville grocery house. Mrs. Moore will go to housekeeping as soon as she can secure a house. —Hopkinsville Courier.

MARRIAGES

Miss Annie Cannon married Christopher M. Berndt at Ledgewood, North Dakota, ceremony by Rev. E. Marcus, Jan. 14th, 1906, at the residence of the minister. Miss Annie is the daughter of G. W. Cannon of this city, and went to the northwest last August to visit her sister, Mrs. W. H. Berndt, and while there met her husband. It was a case of love at first sight, and the young people kept their secret well until the day before Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Berndt left for Kentucky, and then they had the solemn rites of matrimony administered. They are living on the farm of his brother who married Miss Edna Cannon, and now the two sisters will be together having married brothers. Mrs. W. H. Berndt and her husband are now visiting her father's family here on North Main street.

Mr. M. Pressnell requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of his daughter, Josephine, to Mr. Oliver T. Lasher, Wednesday evening, January the thirty-first at 8:30 o'clock, Methodist Episcopal church, Smithland, Ky. At Home after February 15th.

The above is the substance of a wedding card recently received by the Editor. Miss Pressnell is one of Smithland's famous beauties, amiable and gracious in manner, sweet and lovable in disposition and with a mind well stored with all the essentials that go to make a happy home. Mr. Lasher is a lawyer of promise and is also the brilliant young Editor of the Smithland Banner. The PRESS begs to tender its sincere post nuptial congratulations.

R. N. WALKER DEAD.

A Good Man and Honored Citizen Passes to His Reward.

After a long and painful illness, extending over several years, Robert Newton Walker, one of the best known and most highly esteemed and beloved men of Marion and Crittenden county, passed away at his home on N. Main street, in this city, on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

Mr. Walker is survived by his wife who was before her marriage Miss Sarah Jane Clement to whom he was married March 4, 1857. This union was blessed by eight children, two of whom are dead, they being Miss Lou and Joseph H., six surviving, all of whom were with him during his last illness, excepting his son, R. C. Walker. The children are:

R. C. Walker of Grand Junction, Colorado.
Mrs. Jesse Olive of Elizabethtown.
Mrs. Henry Leavitt of Elizabethtown, Ill.

Mrs. H. B. Moore, Mrs. E. H. Doss and Miss Nellie Walker of this city.

Robert Newton Walker was born in this county near Tolon on June 4, 1833, and was therefore in his seventy-third year. He lived on the farm until 1868 when he was elected Sheriff, defeating Robert Coffield, formerly postmaster at Marion. The fact that he was endorsed in 1872 and re-elected proves that he was one of the best sheriff's the county ever had.

He engaged in the retail dry goods business for several years in Marion with P. H. Woods, now of Ardmore, I. T., and in the leaf tobacco business with J. C. Elder, Jr., now in the post office, and also the late Piney Frank Wilson, and later in the furniture business with his son-in-law, Jesse Olive.

In all stations of life he has had the confidence, love and esteem of the people.

He retired from active business pursuits on account of his failing health several years ago, since which time he has been tenderly cared for by his devoted wife and children.

He was one of the pillars of the Methodist Episcopal church, and few were the times when his seat was vacant at services when held there.

The funeral will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. R. McAfee.

Patrick Henry Kemp Dead.

Patrick Kemp, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kemp, of this city, died Tuesday morning Jan. 23rd at 5 o'clock. He had suffered extremely since Dec. 13th, '05, when he accidentally shot himself in the left shoulder inflicting a wound which caused his death. All the medical aid possible was given him but it seemed that death had the hold on him.

He was born Feb. 14th, 1889, and if he had lived until Feb. 14th would have been 17 years old. He was born and reared near Shady Grove and had only lived in Marion a short time but has many warm companions, school boys and girls who miss him from their ranks.

His mother was Miss Mary Virginia Fox, daughter of Noah Fox one of the county's best men.

He leaves besides his parents, one half-sister, Mrs. Sam Brown and one half-brother, Jim Kemp, and six brothers and sisters, the oldest being Mrs. Frank Swisher, of Tunica, Miss., Ashley, Eddie, Franklin, Robert and Pressley.

Since his affliction he made a bright profession of religion in the presence of relatives and friends.

The funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church by Rev. T. A. Conway and interment at the New Cemetery.

In Memory of R. H. Yates.

Robert H. Yates was born Oct. 17, 1863 and departed this life Jan. 6th, 1906. He was 43 years, 2 months and 20 days old, was born, reared and died at Sheridan, Ky., this country. He was the elder son of Rev. and Mrs. John T. Yates. Nov. 11th 1885 he was married to Miss Sue Minner, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Minner. To this happy union seven children have blessed their home, of which four still survive, two boys and two girls, Charles and Ray, Lena and Birdie, besides his wife and children and five brothers and two sisters are left to mourn his loss, the Evangelist William B. Redford, Learner, George and Loren, Mrs. Margaret Clemens, of St. Louis, and Ima.

He professed faith in Christ in 1884, joined the M. E. church and has always lived a devoted Christian, faithful husband, a loving father and was highly respected by all who knew him. Mr. Yates health began failing him some two or three years hence and gradually grew worse until he was confined to his room. He suffered untold agonies at times until the death angel spirited his soul to a heaven of rest. He bore his pain like a soldier and never grew weary or impatient and oft times lay on his sick bed and sang and prayed with his family, kindred or friends and on number of occasions while alone could be heard singing praises to God on high. He was a dear lover of music either vocal or instrumental and his many friends were ever ready to assemble at his home and join him in singing.

He was a great church and Sunday school worker, always attended and took part whenever his health would permit and for many years camped and attended the famous Hurricane camp meeting and was ever ready and willing to lend a helping hand and contributed cheerfully to anything for the cause of rebuilding of Christ until called to rest.

His remains were interred at the Love cemetery. Revs. Boggess and Gibbs conducted the funeral services at the grave. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community and may the blessings of God rest and abide with them forever. Weep not for him who peacefully rests.

For our Creator knows the best, God's will not ours has been fulfilled.

A place is vacant in our home which never can be filled.

A FRIEND.

Married in the Northwest.

The marriage of C. M. Berndt and Miss Anna Cannon took place at Ledgewood last Thursday, Rev. E. F. Movius officiating. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Wm. H. Berndt and came here from Kentucky last August, since which time she has made many friends. The groom is a well known young farmer and enjoys the esteem of all. They will reside on the Wm. H. Berndt farm during the absence of the latter on a visit south, and will go to housekeeping for themselves in the spring. All join in extending congratulations. —Hankinson (N. D.) News.

THE HOME COMING.

Of Kentuckians.—An Outline of The Programme.

The programme for "Home Coming Week" in Louisville, June 13 to 17, when one hundred thousand former Kentuckians are expected to go back to their native health, is rapidly taking shape.

The first day, Wednesday, June 13 will be known as Reception and Welcome day, the second, June 14, as Foster day, the third, June 15 as Daniel Boone day, the fourth, June 16, as Greater Kentucky day, and the 5th day, Sunday, June 15, as Until We Meet Again.

The address of welcome is to be delivered by Henry Watterson and responded to by David R. Francis, of Missouri. Others on the programme are Wm. Lindsey, John G. Carlisle, John M. Harlan, Thos. T. Crittenden, Adlai E. Stevenson, etc.

There will be a civic and military parade on the first day, and every county in the state will make headquarters in the Armory, which is the second largest building of the kind in the United States. On "Foster Day" there will be several events in memory of the author of "My Old Kentucky Home," including the unsealing of a statue of Foster, which will be cast in bronze and later placed in the new Capitol at Frankfort. Daniel Boone day will be one of the features of the week, during which there will be sewing bees, apple peavings, corn huskings and old fashioned dances.

The Commercial Club has offered a handsome medal to the person present on Daniel Boone day, who can prove the closest relationship to the pioneer. On Greater Kentucky day there will be barbecue campfires, etc., and orators will be given the opportunity to tell how Kentuckians have helped make other states greater by their having lived in them. On Sunday former Kentuckians will fill the pulpits in Louisville. Send name and address of any former Kentuckian you may know to Mr. R. E. Hughes, Secretary Commercial Club, Louisville, Ky.

It is the best for coughs and colds. Woods & Orme.

Opening Oration.

The following was composed by A. E. Brown, and delivered by Victor Young on opening day at Lillie Dale school.

We meet today to do homage to our school and school house. Parents, friends and school mates, I extend to you a cordial welcome. I hope that all may feel at home in our new building, of which we feel proud; this speaks for our district. No. 47 that we are moving in the educational ranks of the day. We leave you, friends, to judge whether or not I have spoken the truth to you.

We can not expect to succeed in this life without an effort and education is the lever that drives the business world. Why should we not march to the front, with a beautiful home and lovely surroundings? I see no reason why our banner should not be foremost, with golden letters large and clear. "Excellence" as our motto, then labor to keep this emblem about.

Will you, parents and friends lend us a helping hand? We are here in school work, trying to reach forth from the pale faced moon those hours which we so richly deserve.

The question is can we do it? We only ask that you lend a helping hand and see if we will not carry with us the honors of a well trained school, and our boys and girls go out in life with quickened minds, and fresh memories of good and profitable days spent while at the Lillie Dale school.

We believe, dear friends, that this help is forthcoming coming as witness I call your attention to this building, for which words fail to express our gratitude to parents and to our noble county superintendent, Mr. John B. Paris.

We also point to the walls with pride, and could we but call into our midst these our forefathers, they would doubtless say, come up higher, you have been faithful over a few things, we will make you ruler over great things.

All nature seems to join in with us on this lovely day, and God himself shows his admiration by smiles of sunshine on a day set apart for the advancement of civilization and betterment of the human family, made in His own image.

We are glad to meet our friends and schoolmates today for many reasons, sociality for one, the most needed in this line can only be had through such friendly gatherings as we have today. We expect one and all to feel free and enjoy this gathering, and may it ever be that through school life there may some pleasure attached as well as work.

Adieu! friend of my girlhood days. You have crossed the dark river. I am waiting for Sharon's boat to ferry me over to the other side, where all my other cherished ones await me.

A FRIEND.

The Dress of Paris.

Spring is certainly the season for the trotter frock so useful for morning wear, writes Doudou La Fontaine in the February Delphine.

For walking costumes cloth is less and less used, and fancy materials are now little used. Fancy materials are now more in mode. Small checks, stripes, stripes especially in black and white are in favor, and gray is very popular.

Every kind of light transparent material is the plainer finely striped will be made worn, and the valise will be unusually fine and light wooden voltes for silk with sedentary effect that it looks like wood.

These soft materials lends itself most successfully to the new fashion. The new trend of fashion is toward the long, simple flowing folds, especially silk, as we have known it is no longer in vogue, but its place is Baudin, a silk material that is a once brilliant soft and strong. It can be had plain, gauze, printed striped, spotted, covered with small designs, either noticeable or almost imperceptible, yet which ruffles change on the perfectly plump maid.

Chiffon fabric revived with added beauty and softness of wear, is extremely popular, and crepe de Chine with the countless varieties of lace that is to be found on the market are as popular as ever.

Long lace coats, which were so much admired last year, will be worn as well as short vests and boleros. The Princess and Empire effects are the prevailing style.

A Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party may be given to your stomach and liver by taking a medicine which will relieve their pain and discomfort, viz. Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are a most wonderful remedy, affording sure relief and cure, for headache, dizziness and constipation. 25c at Woods & Orme's drug store.

Barn Demolished.

Monday afternoon a strong wind preceding a slight fall of hail made hayne in several communities in the county.

At Farmersville the house of Luther McHesney was completely demolished. The residence stood in front of the church and was almost completed, lacking only doors and window glazing. The wind scattered it in every direction. Princeton Leader.

Letter from Oklahoma.

LAWTON OKLA. Jan 19. Editor Press. As many of my friends have asked me to write to them and as we feel that we have so many friends who read the Press, therefore we make this plan of writing to them.

We left home in October with Mr. C. F. Hobart of Kuttawa and came to Lawton and bought a farm through the agency of Keith, Trent & Co.

On Dec. 19th Mr. J. T. Campbell and family together with my wife, and I started for our new home on the farm four miles east of Lawton. We had a safe trip but have had some inconvenience by not getting our goods for some time, but we managed to get along much better than we expected, and we found other people here getting along nicely with less to do with than they did in Ky., so we took lessons from them and managed to keep house without our goods. But now we are located on the farm, and do want to say that we certainly are delighted with the farm we have and with the country gener-

This country had its first settler four years ago, and at that time there was not a railroad in the country. Today there are five ways out of Lawton by rail and the population is about 8,000. The country is laid off into one mile squares and roads are open. Every 160 acres a settler on it and there is a fine school house every three miles all the country. And by the way Comanche county is 60 miles long by 70 miles broad.

Every school house is nicely furnished and each one has an organ. Every farm has quite a lot in cultivation and on some of them nearly all the land has been plowed.

At this time there has not been more than four days that a farmer did not plow this winter and most of them say they will sow oats early February. They raise oats, corn, cotton, wheat, Kaffler corn, Millet, millett, flax, sorghum, broomcorn, etc., and all crops seem to do well.

This is said to be a very healthy country and it should be as the elevation is high.

We certainly would be glad to tell more particularly to any one giving more information about the country and while we will always be a kindly place in our hearts for Kentucky, and the people there, yet do think this is a better place to start in and also one where you may enjoy the comforts of life.

With best wishes to all we beg to part.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' TRAINING CLASS

LESSON XVI.

There are no Sunday School lessons in this week's readings.

DAILY MEAL

Sunday, Jan. 28.—Sunday preaching tour and comparisons on Lk. 1-3.

Monday, Jan. 29.—Christ enters the house followed by multitudes. Mt. 13:19-20.

Tuesday, Jan. 30.—Jesus heals the blind and dumb demoniac. Mt. 12:22-23.

Wednesday, Jan. 31.—He has many cases of insanity. Mt. 3:21.

Thursday, Feb. 1.—Dispute with scribes and Pharisees. Mt. 14:24-37.

Friday, Feb. 2.—Scribes and Pharisees demand a sign. Mt. 12:38-45.

Saturday, Feb. 3.—Christ's true disciples, his true kindred. Mt. 12:46-50. Mk. 3:34-35. Lk. 8:19-21.

HELP TO STUDY.

Beelzebul is derived from that of a heathen deity (2 Kings, 1:3), who at one time was regarded as a great enemy of Jehovah. The Pharisees were arrayed against him and would not receive his doctrine. Many people in the world should have been susceptible to spiritual teaching, it was the Jews, but the Pharisees had lost spiritual susceptibility in their devotion to external rules.

Jesus teaches that mere physical relationship, blood kin, etc., are inferior to spiritual relationship, and that his true kindred are those who do God's will.

The Messianic Hope.—In their state of subjection the Jews sighed for relief and looked earnestly for the coming Messiah as a Deliverer. They had suffered enough in the last 150 years to make them sigh for relief. The Messianic hope originated in the prophecies of the Old Testament. Daniel's prophecy of the everlasting kingdom that should be set up in the days of those kings, and those had all reigned and fell except Rome, which was last and under whose government they were then groaning, it made them aglow with intense desire. Every vision of man, used by Daniel, was not appropriately applied to the Messiah. The Targums, which were free translation or paraphrases, of many of the prophecies contain announcements bearing to the same spirit. The apocryphal writings, such as the Book of Enoch, Macabees, the writings of Baruch, Esdras and others were full of Messianic predictions. The Sibylline prophecies, 140 B.C., gave many glowing glimpses of the coming Messianic kingdom. They were longing for the time when God should establish upon the earth an eternal kingdom of peace, into which all men should be gathered.

O. T. HISTORY, Period I.—From the creation 4004 B.C. to the Deluge, 2348 B.C., a period of 1656 years. Place. Principal events, mention four. Principal persons, mention four. Notice that the lives of the three patriarchs, Adam, Methuselah and Shem, extend over a period of 2150 years, that is, from the Creation to nearly 500 years after the Deluge. Adam was contemporary with Methuselah 243 years; Methuselah with Shem 100 years; Shem with Abraham 100 years. Thus the story of Creation could easily and accurately pass to Abraham through three men.

PALESTINE, the maritime plain. This was the plain that lay along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea. It is broken into two parts by Mt. Carmel. North of Carmel it is a narrow sea-coast plain, called Phoenicia. South of Carmel it is wider, ranging from 8 miles wide near Carmel to 20 miles farther south. Immediately south of Carmel it is called Sharon, farther south bordering on Judea, it was called Judea. It is a fertile, undulating plain from 100 to 200 feet above sea-level. These sea-plains were not occupied by Israelites very largely in O.T. times, but were more fully occupied in N.T. times.

THE TEACHER. His character. By the character of the teacher we mean the sum-total of what he is, his belief, his morals, his manners. It is made up of his thoughts, his disposition, his affections, his words, his actions. It embraces all the man is at heart and in his life, secret, social and public. In his character the teacher should be

1. A consecrated Christian, Rom. 12:2, Mt. 10:37, 38; Lk. 9:57-62;
2. Consistency of life, Rom. 2:21; 1 Thess. 5:22; 1 Th. 5:8. [Cor. 5:14-21]
3. Love for souls, 2 Cor. 5:14.
4. Earnestness, Rom. 12:11.

THE TEACHER. His life.

1. Signification.
2. Source,
  - a. Christ, Phil. 1:21; Gal. 2:20.
  - b. The Holy Spirit is the agent that communicates this life, 1 Jno. 3:24; 4:13.
  - c. This life animates the body as well as the soul, 1 Cor. 6:19.
3. Signs of this life,
  - a. Interest in the church,
  - b. Attitude toward worldly amusements,
  - c. Care for the poor,
  - d. Spirituality.

THURSDAY, JAN. 25 1900.

One of the worst tie-ups for years has prevailed in Chicago for several days, caused by the great storm of wind rain and sleet which struck that city on Monday last. But few telegraph wires were working out of the city in any direction.

The case of Caleb Powers is now being argued in the Supreme Court of the United States on a motion to dismiss the State's appeal from Judge Cochran's decision. Quite a number of lawyers are in attendance as there are a number of important legal points involved in the controversy.

The Pardon Tax Bill has been defeated in the House. It sought to restrict the pardoning power of the governor in the remission of fines in cases of carrying concealed deadly weapons. The opponents of the bill declared it unconstitutional, in that it restricts the pardoning power of the governor. "Tis a pity some law cannot be framed to suppress this growing evil of pistol-carrying. It could not be far outside the mark to state that fully nine-tenths of the murders that occur in Kentucky are directly traceable to this evil practice. But the remission of fines by the governor is no remedy for the disease—only an aggravation.

Architect Andrews, of the new State Capitol, wants another million dollars appropriated for the completion of that structure. It is the honest opinion of the Press that Architect Andrews won't get it, and ought not to get it. Mr. Andrews is employed on a percent. contract, and the greater the cost of the building the larger the profit for Andrews. No people will watch this thing, and if there is any "jockeying" attempted "it were better those legislators had a millstone about their neck." If the following, which we copy from a recent article on this subject in the Owensboro Messenger does not indicate a disposition to criminal extravagance, if nothing else, on the part of some one, what does it indicate? The Messenger says:

"A few days before the meeting of the present General Assembly it was hinted that an additional appropriation of $100,000 to $150,000 would be asked to provide a lighting and heating plant that was not embraced in the original contract. But now Architect Andrews boldly calls for $1,028,000 more to double the original proposed cost. The capitol building commission has hardly the nerve to concur in the demand, but submits it and asks a conference with the capital committees of the two houses to talk it over."

The friends of this measure contend that some $700,000 additional are absolutely necessary to complete the building. It is strange that an architect could make a mistake that nearly doubles the amount of the original estimate.

Former Gov. Leslie Our Guest.

Ex-Governor Preston H. Leslie, who was governor of Kentucky from 1870 to 1875, and who has lived in Montana for several years, is visiting friends in Barren county. Governor Leslie was an executive of high character, and the people of Kentucky have never ceased to do him honor. He is now 85 years old but as vigorous as most men of sixty. He is actively engaged in the practice of law and is probably one of the oldest attorneys in active practice now in the United States. —Owensboro Inquirer.

Perished in the Flames.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Jan. 17. At 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning the home of Wm. Moss, six miles in the country, was destroyed by fire. Two of his daughters, Julia, aged fifteen, and Marjorie, aged twelve, were in an upstairs room sleeping together, and were cut off by the flames. Julia managed to escape by running through the fire, but she was so terribly burned that she will probably die. Marjorie could not get out and perished in the flames. The other members of the family had narrow escapes. What started the fire is a mystery.

CADIZ MOB.

Negro Lynched For Attacking a School Girl On Street.

Cadiz had a lynching at an early hour Sunday morning, following an attack made on a school girl belonging to a prominent family, the night before.

The negro was named Ernest Baker and his would-be victim was Miss Mary Gentry, a sixteen-year-old daughter of Robert Gentry.

The young lady boards at Mrs. H. Gaines on East Main street and attends school. About 8 o'clock

Saturday evening Miss Gentry in company with Mr. Gaines' little ten-year-old daughter started downtown to the post-office. Almost opposite the Gaines house is an alley between the houses of Dan Grinter and Ed Street and out of this alley a negro darted and seizing Miss Gentry dragged her into the alley and threw her upon the ground. The little girl ran screaming for help and Miss Gentry herself joined in the cries for assistance. As the girl was thrown down she quickly regained her feet when the negro caught her by one ankle and threw her again. At this point people were heard coming to the scene and leaving the girl the brute disappeared in the darkness. Miss Gentry in the struggle saw that the negro had on a black shirt. He also made tracks in the soft ground that showed the impression of new rubber heels bearing the names of Terry & White. Prompt action was taken. Terry & White had that day sold to Ernest Baker some rubber heels for his shoes. Several other negroes were arrested and held. Finally Baker was found at a negro dance with a white shirt on, but the tell-tale rubbers still on his heels. It was proven that he had worn a black shirt the day before and he was taken to jail and the other prisoners released. He refused to talk.

At 3 a. m. a mob waited on Jailer Harry Timmons and demanded the keys. He hesitated, but yielded to threats and gave them up. Baker was gagged in his cell, taken out to the town scales near the jail and quietly hanged to a beam.

Baker was a porter in Sam Smith's saloon. He was about 30 years old and a few years ago his brother met death for a similar offense. He went to the house of Ed Sumner and raising a window caught hold of the foot of one of Mr. Sumner's daughters, who was asleep in the bed near the window. Her screams aroused her father who appeared with his gun and killed the negro as he ran out of the gate.

Stock Cremated.

Clinton, Ky., Jan. 17.—A fine barn belonging to Lige and John Kyle was burned Saturday morning on the farm of the Kyles east of Moscow.

The worst feature of it was the burning alive of nine head of valuable mules and three horses, altogether valued at $1,800. The loss also included 250 bushels of corn, 25 tons of hay, several binders and mowers, a lot of farm tools and machinery, a wagon, buggy, harness, etc. The total loss foots up about $4,000, with only $1500 insurance.

The Kyle barn was one of the best in the county, almost new and modern in all respects. Several of the mares burned were worth two hundred dollars apiece.

Dec. 12, 1905.

After visiting his father and family for several weeks, Ensign Clarence E. Landram left Saturday for Washington City, where he will await orders from the Navy Department.

This is the longest stay since going to the Navy and his many friends enjoyed having him among them very much. Clarence is one of the brightest boys Livingston county has ever produced, in proof of which he stands right in line for promotion in the Navy. Livingston Bauer, Ensign Clarence E. Landram was the guest of his uncle, Dr. A. J. Driskill and family during the holidays.

A Freak Ear of Corn.

J. R. Moore, of Repton, brought to the Press office a corn cob, from which he had shelled the corn, which is in the shape of a man's head. The thumb and all four fingers being well formed and plainly outlined. It has been examined by several people and is certainly a curiosity.

Obituary.

The Rev. R. M. Woodsides, of Braggadocio, Mo., died at that place happy in a Saviour's love on the 5th day of last December, of pneumonia, after an illness of eleven days. Mr. Woodsides was for many years a resident of Crittenden county, and if I mistake not served for awhile in the Federal army. He was known as a public school teacher of the highest class, back in the 70's and contributed many articles in verse and prose to the local paper. The following stanza from one of his poems is still fresh in the writer's memory:

"Alas! how vain and cheating

Are all the hopes of earth.

They're like the moments fleeting

And joys will die at birth.

They, like the little flower,

That looked so sweet at morn.

Will perish in an hour.

And leave the heart forlorn.

He came to Dixon schoolhouse, one mile north of Hampton, early in the spring of 1873, taught a school at that place during the spring, and two or three times later on where Joy is now located.

He professed religion at the great

Arbor meeting held by Eld. W. B. Hosick, and there at Dixon in the summer of 1874; he was married to Miss Henrietta Weaver early the following winter.

He began preaching shortly after he was married, and at the time of his death was a local Methodist minister.

He leaves a wife and several chil-

THIS above picture of the man and fish is the trademark of Scott's Emulsion, and is the synonym for strength and purity. It is sold throughout all the civilized countries of the globe.

If the cod fish became extinct it would be a world-wide calamity, because the oil that comes from its liver surpasses all other fats in nourishing and life-giving properties. Thirty years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion found a way of preparing cod liver oil so that everyone can take it and get the full value of the oil without the objectionable taste. Scott's Emulsion is the best selling in the world for weak, sickly children, thin, delicate people, and all conditions of wasting and lost strength.

Religion at Home.

Religion, if in heavenly truth attired
Needs only to be seen to be admired.

Cowper.

Our greatest writers all agree that religion affords home security and happiness, removes family friend and causes all complicated wheels of the home machinery to move along smoothly. When dark and sad days begin to shadow the home, what can cheer and brighten the sinking heart like turning to One who can make the blinding tears of sorrow to be the seed pearls of the brightest crown. What does a home become without religion as its light and rule? Human nature is checked and modified by the amiable spirit and lovely character of Jesus. The heart is softened, sentiment refined, passions subdued, hopes elevated, purposes ennobled, the world cast into the shade and heaven realized as the first prize.

The great want of our intellectual and moral nature is here met and the home education becomes impregnated with the spirit and elements of preparation for eternity. Like manna it will feed our souls, quench our thirst, sweeten the cup of life and shed a halo of glory and of gladness around our fireside. Let yours, therefore, be the religious home and God will delight to dwell therein and his blessings will descend, like the dews of Heaven, upon it. Yours will be the home of love and harmony, of family hopes and happiness.

Good morals will be the crowning attribute of your peaceful home, "the crown of living stars" which shall adorn the right of tribulation, and the pillar of elation and of fire in the pilgrimage to a better country.

It will strew the family threshold with the flowers of promise and enshrine the memories of loved ones gone before in all the fragrance of that blessed hope of reunion in heaven which looms up from a dying hour. It shall give to the infant soul its perfect flowering and expand it in all the fullness of a generous love making illustrious in the livery of divine knowledge. Then in the dark hour of home separation and bereavement, when the question is put to the mourning parents, "Is it well with the child, is it well with thee?" You can answer with joy, "It is well."

In Memoriam.

I know the Hon. T. Everett Butler well and knew him to be a courteous Christian gentleman. I offer these lines to his Memory.

Death always strikes a shining crest
Unering in its aim,

And in yielding its claim
The mortal takes immortal rest.

A score and ten brief years less one,
Measured the span of life
Ended ere scarce begun its strife,
And yet in golden words 'tis writ,
"Well done!"

The first of thoughts began thy tomb
Not silent, pulseless shaft
That aches virtue in marble aff
Long have come the shadows of gloom.

Come walk with me, said Fame,
And with the guidance of my hand

Stamp upon thy native land
The granite of a righteous name,

the structure of the youth,

And noble the very life plan

Of right with man and man

And the dearest of earth—the truth.

Faded as fade the stars when day

Floods them with too portentous light,

The faded they shine on as bright

Where stars no life bethet never a ray.

The Grip.

Before we can sympathize with others, we must have suffered ourselves. No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of grip, unless he has the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony or which so successfully defies medical aid. All danger from the grip, however, may be avoided by the prompt use of Chamber's Gough Remedy. Among the thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. For by Woods & Orme, the leading druggists.

SPAIN'S KING TO WED.

THE YOUTHFUL PRINCESS OF ENGLAND IS TO BECOME THE SPANISH QUEEN.

She is the Niece of this Country's Recent Guest, Prince Louis of Battenberg—Princess Ena the Royal Beauty of England.

All eyes will be turned toward Spain next May when the young King Alfonso XIII. will take the most beautiful and popular princess of England to his queen.

The young girl who has at last been selected to share the throne with Alfonso is the Princess Ena of Battenberg, only daughter of Princess Henry, the youngest sister of King Edward.

Ever since Alfonso became King of Spain, and even when his mother acted as Queen Regent, his picturesquely personified has been the talk of two continents. Long before he reached the marriageable age, even for a king, a new bride was picked out for him every day, and to members of his suite he would often say:

"Whom am I to marry to-day? The newspapers surely have found me another wife!"

But now that question no longer agitates Alfonso's court, for the beautiful Princess Ena has been chosen after a search which led the young monarch all over Europe. Country after country was visited, but the fastidious young king was often confronted by more fastidious young princesses, and after he had been out on his search for a while he found that royal princesses were not so anxious to become Queen of Spain as he had thought back in his luxurious palace.

When Alfonso visited England a few months ago there were dozens of young noblewomen paraded for his inspection, but his eyes flew to the young Princess Ena, and Alfonso, the unim-pressionable, was conquered.

Few monarchs have had the meteoric career of this young King of Spain, and if the Princess who is to become his consort follows out the rules which have always governed her happy young life Alfonso will have at last found someone to keep him in the way he should go—an achievement which has never heretofore been accomplished.

He has frequently ridden out of the palace disguised as a soldier, a guard or even a peasant, and has gone for miles horseback riding or to attend some little fete which has come to his notice. Days have elapsed during which the queen mother and the entire court have searched high and low for the boy king without avail, but before the incident could be made public the young monarch would come riding back the way he had gone, happier for his boyish prank and checking remonstrance with the assurance that "I am the king."

The Princess Ena is regarded as the beauty of the royal household. She is but eighteen years old, and is the only girl in the family. Her three brothers adore her and are constantly giving her a "ripping" good time. Her elder brother, Prince Alexander, was recently in this country as a "middy" with the fleet of Prince Louis of Battenberg, his uncle.

This charming young woman made her debut last February at Buckingham Palace and created a furor. She is the favorite godchild and likely to become the principal heiress of Emperor Eugene.

Princess Ena is an enthusiastic sailor and motorist, and is the constant companion of her mother on numerous little trips in their yacht and through the beautiful country for which their home, the Isle of Wight, is noted. She is especially gifted with dramatic ability, and in a recent amateur production given in Kensington Palace she played the part of a vivandiere with marked success. She sings and dances exceptionally well.

FORESTRY A NECESSITY.

A BROAD, NATIONAL SYSTEM OF PRESERVATION NOT A FAD NOR A FANCY.

The Editor of the American Lumberman Urges Irrigation and Forestry Legislation—Quotes Some Noted Authorities.

(From the "American Lumberman" of Dec. 2, 1905.)

By request the American Lumberman reprints in this issue a part of the speech of George H. Maxwell, executive chairman of the National Irrigation Association, delivered before the American Forest Congress at Washington, D. C., in the early part of January, 1905. This address has much to commend it to the business men of the country. It was termed the sensational address of the congress, and perhaps deservedly so called because it sets forth in illuminated words the necessity of inaugurating a systematic movement looking toward the rehabilitation of forest lands and the planting of treeless areas.

The gentleman who delivered this able talk on forestry spoke from experience and close observation. He did not dilly-dally around with the usual commonplace platitudes about the importance of forestry, but by illustration showed for what purposes the forests were intended and the commercial value of their importance as compared with the recognized bulwarks of the nation. While he conceded the necessity of an army and navy to guard invasion and to protect and uphold the rights of the people in foreign countries he called particular attention to the desirability of maintaining an adequate forested area in order that the commercial interests of the United States might in like manner be preserved.

Mr. Maxwell's arraignment of the national lawmakers and his comments on the shortsightedness of those in charge of business interests were timely. While not subscribing fully and unreservedly to the views expressed the American Lumberman believes that his severe condemnation of past and present methods and practices will bring forth good results and that its republication will again turn public attention to the necessity of adopting laws which will correct evils in the future and provide a system of a juster administration of the public land laws.

The attitude of the public toward forestry and irrigation is a peculiar one. Men evidently fail to recognize any personal interests in such questions. Some are totally indifferent; others admit the desirability of establishing reserves but want to leave it to those who are more directly concerned. Still others are lukewarm and, while readily admitting the benefits of forestry and irrigation projects, content themselves with waiting until there is more visible likelihood of the movement being successful. Still another faction is made up of those who are openly opposed to all forestry schemes, many national irrigation projects, and government intervention in such matters.

Until within recent years the forests of the country as a whole have been controlled by private owners. The in the central states the forests give place to farms, in some instances not even a woodlot being spared. The people of this country unquestionably have abused the privilege of doing as they please with their own property for their immediate financial betterment, with the prospect of such practices resulting disastrously in the future.

Much of the land denuded of its timber is absolute forest land, fit for no purpose except possibly grazing, and not of the best character even for that use. Nature will require years to replace this protection so that a new forest may be brought forth, and this change never will be possible unless the woods and small growth which nature uses as a basis of the cover shall be protected.

It is impossible to secure the adoption of laws looking toward the establishment of a new custom of national scope without a widespread public demand for the change believed by its supporters to be an improvement over existing customs. Few if any have the effrontery openly to take the field against the forestry movement, as all fair minded people realize the necessity of keeping a part of the country protected by forest cover. The claim of science that forests are necessary to protect the rainfall as an aid in this regulation generally is admitted.

GEORGE H. MAXWELL,
Executive Chairman, the National Irrigation Association.

On the subject the attitude of the people as a whole is this: "Yes, forestry is a mighty good thing, but I am too busy with my little affairs to take any personal interest in it and then I would not be directly benefited in any way. Let the other fellow who is going to get some advantage from it fight for it." It is about time for the public to wake up and begin to take notice. Mr. Maxwell's speech strikes a high note and should create sufficient noise thoroughly to awaken the sleepers.

FORESTS SHOULD BE PROTECTED.

An Address Before the American Forest Congress.

In the American Lumberman's exhaustive report of the proceedings of the American Forest Congress, held in Washington, D. C., in January last, in the installment presented March 24 was given the address of George H. Maxwell, executive chairman of the National Irrigation Association. In view of the early meeting of congress Mr. Maxwell's recommendations, which follow, are timely and valuable.

I think the mistake we make today and always has been made in looking upon the question of forestry as in any sense a sectional question, it is necessarily as much a national question as is the maintenance of an army or the construction of a navy. (Applause.)

I wish I had the power by some telepathic process of impressing upon the mind of every man present the picture that is in my own mind as I stand here.

I crossed the Mississippi river on my way to the west a little over two years ago on a ferryboat on which was loaded a train of overland passenger cars, and we crossed that great river opposite the city of New Orleans, during one of the greatest floods in years, the water was almost up to the tops of the levees on both sides of the river. It was a serious question whether the city of New Orleans was not in danger, but we landed on the west side of the river and walked down over the bank and saw the plantations away down below the level of the water and exposed to overflow and destruction any moment that artificial barrier might break. Before we had gone twenty-four hours farther west the levee did break and one of those great crevasses was formed and it practically destroyed the crop for that season over a large area; though other localities and the city of New Orleans were saved by the diminished pressure of the flood on the adjacent levees.

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE.

This English Actress Would Refuse Divorce to Couples Who Have Children.

Miss Olga Nethersole, the distinguished English actress who is now producing in this country a new society drama, "The Labyrinth," speaks with intense conviction against divorce to families in which children have been born to the marriage. When the production of the play was first broached to Miss Nethersole she was more than willing to produce it not alone for the excellent opportunities afforded her for dramatic inspiration, but she found that it had a serious purpose in teaching humanity an object lesson. In fact most of the plays which Miss Nethersole has produced have hidden somewhere lessons to be taught the founders of homes.

"Hervieu," she said in an interview, "was shown in his drama, 'The Labyrinth,' the indissoluble bond the child makes between husband and wife and the terrible consequences of a disruption of such a union.

What does marriage mean," she asked, "if not, parentage? The relationships and responsibilities, not of husband, and wife, but of father and mother, are those which should be accepted when a man and woman are joined in marriage. To tear apart by law the tie which binds a couple together, after they have brought children into the world, is to destroy the home and to rob those children of all the influences which develop them into good citizens. Divorce is an injustice to the offspring of marriage; it places a barrier between them and one of their parents—oftentimes both; it warns their development; it embitters their souls. No such desecration of the home should be permitted by law." But what of the many cases in which repeated cruelty makes it impossible for a wife to live with her husband?" was asked.

"Such domestic tragedies occur, it is true, and occur with sad frequency," Miss Nethersole replied. "But even then there should be no absolute disruption of the marriage tie. Separation solves the question. Let them live apart, although still married, and perhaps a reconciliation will take place, and happiness come out of misery. In the end. Then the children will still have a father and mother, although they may spend most of the time with one of their parents. There will at least be no possibilities of placing them under the care of another mother or another father, by a second marriage. A spiritual nucleus, about which the home again might unite, would still exist.

"Uniformity is the first step that is needed in the formation of the divorce laws of the United States. There are different codes in almost every State, and one may be a criminal in one and not in another. Then the divorcees are easily granted on too many grounds. In England there are three causes for which divorce may be secured—infidelity, cruelty and desertion. In this country there seem to be half a dozen or more, but America is ahead of France at least in one respect. There people who may have been divorced may not remarry each other. Such a law is a sin, for in the reunion of the pair lies the only hope for the salvation of the home."

"George," he said, "to-day ends the twenty-fifth year of your work for me, and you have worked steadily and well. In this envelop is a memento of the occasion."

"The bookkeeper opened the envelope, trembling and eager. Within lay his employer's photograph. That was all.

"In the face of a disappointment so bitter the poor fellow could say nothing.

"Well," asked the banker, "what do you think of it?"

"It's just like you," said the bookkeeper simply.

The Most Satisfactory Light.
The Angle Lamp is not the only method of lighting your home but taken all in all, it is the most satisfactory. For while it floods your room with the finest, softest and most radiant light, making your home more cozy and inviting, it requires almost as little attention as gas or electric light, is as simple and convenient to operate as either and actually costs less to burn than the ordinary troublesome old style lamp.

Our Catalogue "B" (sent free on request) explains this new principle applied to illumination, gives complete information and shows why the Angle Lamp burns  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{3}$  less oil than any other for the same amount of light. And then offers you a 30 Days Trial.

And it does more—gives you the benefit of four ten years experience with all lighting methods. Before you forget it—before you turn over this leaf—write for catalog "B".

THE COURSHIP OF WESLEY

By
Lolie Wells Smith

Wesley plodded down the main street, looking back over the shoulder at the straight rows of tomatos whose broad leaves were ripe for picking. He was deeper gulf in his mind than he thought of the problem which he was bent. Never had he done anything that he had been ashamed to tell out to the world at the little cross roads where he was one of the younger men. The tall, gawky shadow he cast in the white road seemed a sort of a mark of that better self that followed him the rest of his life. There was no angel, and it was not of a woman; not that she was perfect except for the fact that she had the sun and fair hair, and the smile of feet that made his own soul tremble, and the daintiest little hand that a big muscular fellow like Wesley yearns to hold in his.

Wesley had never been a ladies' man until the school teacher came into the neighborhood but he had been captured from the evening he drove to the station, where she had sat beside him in the moving wagon during the five miles to go in the September twinkle of her gaunt handkerchief about his senses for a week. It was different from any that had entered his nostrils, accustomed to the odors of basil, marjoram, and a gentle wrinkling of nose in the closely little chapel of Sunday mornings, unity, that strong promoter of her passions, sealed his doom, school teacher boarded in his home and came to bear upon him the tried and wonderful charms of a maid.

It himself the most highly favored in the universe to be able to share the same roof with her, and the little boy behind the sheet-covered bed with wood sawed and a mighty, to handle a refractory board the school house as an excuse to all others who should dare to the teacher's authority, and a hundred offices that a big, strong man perform for a young and fragile member of his household, that brought unspeakable joy.

For, however, from believing these were gaining for him the desired end, Wesley would have dispensed

Silas was seated on a high chair behind the counter regaling himself with the latest postal card news that had come in. "Howdy, Wes," he greeted, reluctantly placing the cards in their respective pigeon holes as the visitor came behind the counter. "Air ye through cuttin'?"

"Well, I-I ain't clean through," was the embarrassed answer—but I let off for a little spell, as I got a mister I want fixed up, an' I thought this would be the best time of day to ketch you."

"Well, ef it's that little loan, I reck'n—"

"No, I ain't after pesterin' you bout that, Sir," Wesley interrupted, to the other's relief, and tattooing awkwardly on the desk, he blurted out:

"Sir, I've come down here to git you to do sumpin' I can't do myself, an' that's to write a letter for me."

"Oh, that's it, is it?" Silas asked, with a grin, noticing the other's embarrassment. "Well, I reck'n I kin 'commode you," he added, taking his pen from behind his ear. "Who's the lady?" eyeing Wesley suspiciously.

"Ireck'n you know," was the answer, with a responsive grin to hide his embarrassed flush.

Then as Silas began to drawl the school teacher's name, writing it at the same time with many flourishes at the top of the sheet he had spread before him, Wesley grinned broader, and confessed with more blushes that that was the young lady in question.

"Now about the beginnin'?" was Silas' next question with his most professional air, making ready to start. "You kin make a little stronger by adding some words on the next line," Silas indicated with his pen the line below the one upon which the lady's name was inscribed, for the benefit of the uninitiated Wesley—"but that's accordin' to your intentions to the young lady." He paused for a moment.

"Then you might make it a little stronger," the other suggested sheepishly after a pause.

"To the young lady that has my heart, how is that?" Silas paused his pen impudently. Wesley nodded approvingly. "That's it," he said, and as Silas waited for further instructions he squirmed awkwardly in his seat and began to wipe the perspiration off his face.

"It's kinder hard to know what to say when you ain't exactly certain 'bout the look her in the face, but began to walk at her side, forgetting to offer to take her books as usual, until they had gone some distance and he made an awkward attempt to relieve her, dropping half of them on the ground in his confusion.

As he stopped to gather them up the fatal letter rolled out from between the pages of one of the books, and there was nothing for him to do but to pick it up and hand it to her. A shamed, side-long glance at her face told him that his doom was to be settled. He walked along, waiting for the verdict like a hero.

"Did you tell Jack Crawford to put that letter on my desk?" the school teacher asked, at last.

"Yes, Miss Elmira," was all he could say.

"Then I presume that you want my answer?" was the next question delivered in a suppressed tone.

"I—I come here to git it," Wesley stammered.

"Then I'll give it to you now, and it's just no!" she said bluntly, not slackening her pace and looking straight ahead of her.

It came like a thunderbolt, even though he was in a measure prepared.

"Miss Elmira, I'm sorry, but—"

"I hate Silas Mansur, and he had no business writing that letter," she interrupted.

Wesley hung his head, his face flushed to the roots of his hair.

"I didn't know you'd be able to tell by the writin', 'deed I didn't; I reck'n it warn't actin' square, but Silas kin write an—"

"I don't care if he can write," she interrupted again. "Do you suppose I'm going to marry a man just because he can write; and after all, I'd rather marry the man I loved if he couldn't write his own name than one I don't care a straw about, even if you are so anxious to make the match for Silas Mansur, and I thought you'd be the last one to—" She broke off with a sob, turning to dash away the tears that sprang to her eyes.

Wesley felt the earth slipping under his feet, the sky seemed a dazzling, crimson vortex whirling above him through the dark tree tops.

"Miss Elmira," he cried at last, "did you think that was Silas' own letter? for it warn't, 'deed it warn't" he panted. "It was my letter, Miss Elmira, every word of it, only I got Silas to write it for me, 'cause—'cause—well, I ain't ashamed ter you to know, now, I can't write my own name."

Wild Geese Killed in Flight.

The southern migration of wild fowl this winter was unusually late and resulted in many disasters. The wild geese are reported from the northwest to have been especially severe sufferers.

The large black-headed goose is a strong, hardy bird, generally remaining on its own native water until the ice forms firmly. In the South it is only a visitor for the winter months. Born on some lake beyond the northern watershed, or perhaps on some inlet in Hudson Bay or the Arctic Ocean, its heart is ever loyal to the land of its birth.

Sometimes, when the cold weather sets in late up North, as in all probability it has this year, the wild geese suffer from their devotion to their native place. They may at this late season fly into a streak of real winter with driving snow to blind their vision, and bitter frost to halt their flight.

If there is storm, their way is right through it, until the leader's eye is closed by the freezing of the skin about its head or its feathers become too heavy weighted. When the storm has gone and the birds are weary, it is easy to see how misleading is much of the talk about the leadings of a extra sense. Like a ship without rudder, the V-shaped flock will make for any low places.

Once a flock came tumbling into the street of an Eastern township's village, where the half-blinded things became the easy prey of the boys and the dogs. In another place a farmer chance one spring to find the frozen carcasses of more than thirty fine geese in a drift in one of the fence corners. The birds had evidently come to earth in some blinding storm, and, imagining they were nearing water, found instead the hard, snow-covered ground.

There are several instances recorded of flocks of geese in a storm running full tilt into the ends or sides of farm buildings. A large brood flew at full speed against the rigging of the whaling steamer Dart this month off the Newfoundland coast. A damp, snow-laden wind was blowing at the time and eleven dead or dying geese fluttered on to the deck, the others alighting in a half-dead condition upon the waves.

A more pleasing story is of domestic geese in a large, well-appointed farm yard hailing with their hearty honk a short time ago, a passing drove of twenty-two black bills. The strangers came down and followed their tame relations into the stable, where they have since stayed.

Re-Using Old Shoes.

Janitors collect the shoes cast away by tenants and send them to auction rooms, where they are sorted into piles marked "Men," "Women," "Children."

In a recent sale in one of the big cities, says the "Shoe Retailer," several poor people made fair bids, but the auctioneer did not seem eager to sell. Finally, a red-faced man pushed his way through the crowd and offered 10 cents apiece or the whole lot. His bid was successful. "I was killing time with talk waiting for that fellow," said the auctioneer afterward. "He always pays high for these shoes and he does not want them for wearing, either. He wants to beat them out for the leather in them. He gets what material there is, puts it through a process and makes stamped frames, bags, pocketbooks, penknife holders, and even chair backs and seats. He finds a ready sale for these novelties and gets a good price for them."

There is a cherry stone at the Salem, Massachusetts, Museum which contains the fac-similes of one dozen silver spoons. They are so small that their shape and finish can only be distinguished by the microscope.

TEA RAISING IN THE UNITED STATES.
The Department of Agriculture Presents American Tea in Tablet Form.

GUY ELLIOTT MITCHELL.

The Department of Agriculture has been making some experiments which from present results seem to promise a revolution in the method of packing and preparing tea. The usual method adopted by tea raisers heretofore has been quite crude in that the dried tea leaves were merely stowed in a loose and bulky package. The effort of the Department of Agriculture is to furnish pure tea in a most convenient form and in a manner to protect the leaves from losing any of their strength through exposure to the air. This has resulted in a method of compressing the leaves into tablets, each of such lent size to make a delicious cup of tea. What would ordinarily make a big package of tea can by this unique method be placed in a space about the size of a safety match box. Another significant feature of the experiment is that the tea used

TEA TABLETS.

The Bulk of Loose Leaves is Equal to One Box of Tablets.

In these tablets is not imported, but, water power, against the unique and unnecessarily elaborate functions of the Chinese manipulator. On the up-to-date British tea estate almost the whole process of tea making from the transportation of the plucked leaf from the gardens to the factory, to the final boxing of the finished product, is performed by machinery. With all this machinery, however, it is necessary that two processes must be performed by human hands—the plucking of the leaf from the bushes and the cutting off of inferior leaf or accidental admixtures such as stems, straws, etc., from the finished product.

Each box of compressed tea contains twenty tablets about the size of a cent, but probably twice as thick. The various kinds of tea, such as Oolong, American Breakfast, black and green, etc., are all prepared in tablet form ranging from sepia to dark green in color. The tablets as heretofore stated are made from tea grown at the Pinchurst tea gardens Summerville, S. C. and contain the purest of leaves thought to be unsurpassed by any imported tea. The tablet form is accomplished by compression with machinery. The directions furnished for using the tablets are as follows:

"Drop one tablet in teapot for each cup of tea desired. Pour in freshly boiled water, and after allowing it to stand four minutes, stir gently, strain, and serve. If made in the cup, use one tablet. Tea will immediately rise to the surface of the cup; then strain the liquor into another cup, add sugar and cream as desired."

While it is explained by officials of the Department that this new form of tablet does not improve the flavor or taste of the tea, the chief value lies in the fact that the product occupies less space. A pound package of ordinary tea, it is stated, would occupy about twenty-five times as much room as one of these little packages of twenty tea tablets prepared by the Agricultural Department.

Tea Handled by Machinery.

The effort of the Department of Agriculture for sometime has been to find means for providing food for the Army and Navy which could be prepared in such a way as to save space. Tablet form naturally suggested itself to them and it is now believed by the government officials that the tea tablets will fill the requirements not only of the general government but those of general merchandise and family use. An important feature in connection with compression of tea into tablet form which should be considered of prime importance is that modern machinery takes the place of the ancient manual operations of the Chinese. Of course, a great advantage of the machine in the tea industry is reduction in the price of labor, but a more important item is the elimination, as far as possible, of human contact. By testimony of travelers in the Orient it is stated that the tea factories of that section are as a rule anything but cleanly, the result of the herding together of so many people—in cramped and often very hot workshops. The tea tablets as prepared by the Department of Agriculture, are made from the tea after it has been dried and rolled. It is then put through a boiling process after which it is placed in small moulds about the size of a cent, where by means of great force, it is compressed into small tablets. The operation of the machinery is so perfect and so rapid that the leaves can be

Interest in the United States. A hundred years ago the first tea plant was introduced at Middleton Barony on the Ashley River near Charleston, S. C. Mr. Junius Smith in the forties made experiments in tea culture at Greenville, S. C. and in the fifties the United States Government collected in Asia and distributed tea seed by the Patent Office through the south Atlantic and Gulf states, which later gave rise to many thrifty little gardens capable of supplying all domestic wants. While these experiments prove the adaptability of the tea plant to the United States they did not prove the possibility of a lucrative industrial undertaking. The United States Department of Agriculture, however, in the last quarter of the 19th century undertook an investigation along this lat-

Malt Coffee as Food.

A Russian army doctor attached to the 2d Turkestan Rifle Battalion has been making some interesting experiments in the matter of nourishing soldiers. Dr. Cyrilus Kyljago administered to ten men for ten days malt coffee as their sole beverage, with the result that their weight increased during the time to the extent of 830 grammes a man. A like experiment was made by giving tea to the same number of men of similar constitutions and for the same number of days, and in their case the doctor certified a decrease of weight per man to the extent of 520 grammes. He then put the twenty men together back on to tea, and those whose weight had been so signally increased by the malt coffee had within ten days lost 660 grammes a head. The doctor now states what is very important to note, namely, that his experiments have led him to believe that it is not merely the nourishing attributes of the malt coffee which mark this increase, but that its effect is mainly to increase the action of the digestive organs, enabling them to draw from all other food taken the utmost quantity of nourishment each may contain.

An Insult to the Horse.

"Would you mind walking the other way and not passing the horse?" said a London cabman, with exaggerated politeness, to the fat lady who had just paid the minimum fare. "Why?" she inquired. "Because if he sees wot I've been carrying for a shilling 'ell 'ave a fit," was the freezing answer.

Philippine Cities.

There are four towns in the Philippines with a population exceeding 10,000 each, and thirty-five with a population exceeding 5,000. Manila is the only incorporated city in the islands, and its inhabitants number 244,732.

picked from the plant at noon and in less than three hours, or in time for supper, can be made into tablets and ready to serve on the table. Few done. Towards the close of the century Dr. Charles U. Shepard, at his own expense renewed this plantation and later received the general assistance of the Department of Agriculture. This is the Pinchurst tea nursery of to-day.

The American Tea Garden.

The Pinchurst gardens embrace at present about 90 acres of tea plants in various stages of advancement and produce from a considerable variety of seed over 10,000 pounds of dry tea annually. The original seed for the Pinchurst tea gardens was procured through the offices of the United States Department of State and the Chinese Government from the celebrated Dr. Lin Poof estate near Hangchow, China, whose output commands too high a local price to admit of its exportation. Pickling tea at Pinchurst is done by a carefully trained and well superintended corps of colored children who show great aptitude in this direction. Instances have occurred of one plucking by one child in a day of over 50 pounds of greenleaf whereas the average in the Orient hardly exceeds 20 to 30 pounds. Experiments at the Pinchurst gardens show that tea from all modern climates could be made as productive here as at their source, a change in climate and the difference in cultivation and manufacture having a tendency to affect the quality of tea when prepared for the table. This is the reason assigned for the difference in the American grown tea from that of imported. The Pinchurst early season tea is considered more delicate and milder than that of cooler climates. The autumn season tea is stronger in color and taste and resembles the product from the more southern regions of the Orient.

The Secretary of Agriculture believes that there is an excellent field in the United States for a home tea industry for we consume approximately 75,000,000 pounds of tea annually or a little less than one pound per capita. Our people, he says, pay at retail about $40,000,000 a year for tea as against $150,000,000 for coffee and $200,000,000 for alcoholic beverages. It has been calculated that the American people drink 400,000,000 gallons of tea annually. We are primarily a nation of coffee drinkers; in proportion to our population we consume only about one-sixth as much tea as the Britons whether at home or in the colonies. While the United States does not import the cheapest kind of tea, nevertheless our importations are chiefly of inferior qualities. The first demand of the American consumer is cheapness, and often-times he will purchase tea of poor quality on account of accompanying ailments of crockery

The Docking of Horses.

Agitation is promised to urge the passage of laws against docking horses, and owners of horses are being petitioned to join in the crusade. Dealers never dock horses, except at the request of a buyer. To offer a horse for sale with a bob tail is to create the suspicion that it is "second hand," one that has seen service before in the city, instead of being fresh from green pastures. Yet the dealers rarely sign such petitions. They declare that the operation of docking is not excessively painful and is aimed for by the easy life it leads to. To have the tail shortened is the initiation of the rough horse pays to gain the comfort and light duties of a private stable.

Fashion is not the only reason to actuate the buyers in having their horses docked, but it is the principal one. A few say that the shortening of the tail makes for cleanliness; as the tail does not become draggled with mud and dust

He Had Had Experience.

As the fearless white man entered the kraal of the native king, a salute was sounded on a drum of serpent skin, and six warriors with necklaces of human teeth rattling about their throats, led him before a rough ivory dias, on which sat a majestic and forbidding figure. "Hail," said the white man. And without loss of time, he took out one of his brass wafers, wound it up, and showed its works to the dusky monarch. "This marvel," he said, "I will give your majesty, making you the envy of all men, and in return for only six tuns of seventy pounds' weight each. The king took the watch, produced a model from a pouch hidden in his shield, and, after a moment's study of the brass trinket, returned it with a languid smile. "Last year," he added, "London, I exchanged an old wooden war club for a bushel of these things, and, by Jove, don't you know, there wasn't one of them that ran above a week."

when docked, and another set maintains that it is really a comfort to a horse to remove the heavy useless mass of hair. City horses do not graze in pasture, so the argument that the switching of the long tail keeps away mosquitoes and flies has no value in this argument; but a decided objection may be voiced against the nuisance switching tails would be to a horse or pony in heavy harness. All style and grace in front action, a pair with hanging tails would look as untidy otherwise as a woman in bedraggled skirts. So said a coaching amateur, and he had plenty to add to the plea for docking.

"Essentially docking is not a painful operation," continued this driving master.

"We do not feel the horse on the morning of the operation, and when it is brought into the operating stall the horse at once begins to munch eagerly on the oats in the manger. A canvas hammock is hung under its belly, and the horse is hoisted to its tiptoes by levers, when a gate is stuck across the stall close to its heels and the tail pulled over, the flat top rail making an operating table. A stout twine is tied tight about the tail at the point to be severed. The hair is turned back and bound, exposing the bare skin.

"A few short cuts with a surgeon's knife, and the tail is severed. Meanwhile a cauterizing iron has been brought to a white heat in a charcoal hand fire, and the next step is to gear the cut with the iron. The horse winces, but it does not take the tenth of a second to seal up the wound. As soon as the iron is taken off the horse will run right away of its own accord, and except while the cauterizing iron is applied in feeble with a check throughout the entire operation.

No one knows what the horses think about it. That docking is cruel may be granted, but the gains to the horse seem to counterbalance the losses. All of which sounds a good deal like an argument made by an interested party as an excuse for a continuance of a practice almost universally condemned.

A Perfect Example.

A lawyer whose mouth was extraordinarily large, half on the witness stand a Southern backwoodsman. The witness had replied to a question that "It was a non-possibility." Quoth the lawyer: "A non-possibility?" Now will you tell this court and this jury what you mean by a non-possibility? Give us an example." "Well," said the witness, "I think it 'd be a non-possibility to make your mouf en' bigger without settin' your years fuder back."

Was a Proper Judge.

When the last Cleveland lady was born, Mr. Cleveland was asked about the weight, which he gave at twelve pounds. Dr. Bryant, who was present, interrupted the ex-President to say that the nurse had reported the young hopeful to be an eight-pounder. "Nothing 'f the kind," said Mr. Cleveland. "I weighed him with the same scales that I use when I go fishing."

Dent.

(G. E. M.)
I am a member of vast and fearful power.
My name is Dent, white e'er I'm found.

I float through the air and sink into the veins of the sons of men;

The youth in joyous spring of life;

The man in manhood in years and strength;

The new-born babe and she
Who watches tenderly his breath of life.

The foolish maiden, and the sage
Of trifling steps and silver locks;

All alike grow faint and listless,

Weak and pale, and sink at last.

To their eternal rest, beneath my glance,

Quickly to find the horse, mid jest and laughter,

But not more surely does the sun sink low behind.

The western hills

Than I have left my power.

Through every limb and fibre of my victim's frame

'Tis said that he laughs best who laugheth last;

And I laugh last, year nigh a million times.

As I perceive my victim's gaze with hollow,

And note his breath come short, and Gasps and cease.

Hah! Hah! Another triumph of my prowess!

And now I float away to murder once again—

To snuff some maiden from her lover's arms.

To strike a youth, his mother's all;

Greedy am I, and each one whom I lay

Adds fuel to my greed.

So do I lie and reap my harvest day by day of Death.
